Enhancing Professional Attributes in

Students through Continual Mentoring

Continual mentoring plays a pivotal role in shaping the professional attributes of trainees at T.N. Rao College of Teacher Education. The comprehensive approach adopted by the institution encompasses various facets that contribute to the holistic development of future educators. Here, we delve into the ten key elements of continual mentoring provided by teachers for the enhancement of professional attributes in trainees.

Reflective Practice Guidance: T.N. Rao College of Teacher Education places a strong emphasis on reflective practice as a fundamental aspect of professional development. Trainees are encouraged to engage in reflective activities, such as hands-on training and special sessions dedicated to book reviews. These structured platforms allow trainees to critically analyze their teaching experiences and actively seek avenues for improvement.

Classroom Observation and Feedback: Regular classroom observations and feedback sessions are integrated into the T.N. Rao College of Teacher Education program. A peer observation system is in place, allowing trainees to conduct observations and fill out observation sheets. These recorded observations contribute to internal assessments, providing constructive insights into teaching practices.
